This House belongs to us all!

And here I thought the USA is the freedom leader of the world. How quickly it happened, driven by scientists and doctors, who feel cutting off your nose despite your face is the answer. Not listening to ALL the information or considering statistical data. Convincing people that extreme measures are needed, similar to TV preachers that prey on the old and emotionally vulnerable population to "Do this _____ or negative things will happen to you". At no point in this crisis did elected politicians attempt to work together...from either side. In fact, some discovered both locally and state they had hidden super powers to safeguard citizens from themselves (as we are too ignorant/uninformed). Yet these same politicians have become part of the cheerleading squad for BLM, ANTIFA, ACAB, etc. Supporting radical/anarchist change in our fabric as a country. (Examples: contributing to a bail fund for those arrested, looking the other way as local businesses burned, calling riots "the summer of love"). BLM in their own rhetoric wants to kill or do harm to LEO's - how do you reconcile that? Wasn't this overt racism present during the 40+ years of JB's time or 8 years of Obama's Presidency? (Black man elected twice by a radically racist country??) My soul grieves for this country, not so much for me as I'm rounding third and heading home, but for the young people (grand kids) what is their future? History re-written?, gender confusion?, no rule of law?. Sends shivers down my spine. Not to mention the thousands of men and women who made the ultimate sacrifice to protect our freedoms. They went before us so we could enjoy our double lattes, Tesla cars, and big houses.

Let's not waste another moment chasing hate, there's been enough of that. What really counts is the American spirit, one that's strong enough to acknowledge our shortfalls, yet strong enough not to break the chain linking us as Americans. Politicians are there to ruffle papers, we citizens are the glue which binds our freedoms. Persistence and perseverance both in faith and each other will carry us through trying times. Allow others to have their opinion, smile more, say "hello" when out and about, let someone go ahead of you, say "thanks" more, there are more lovely, wonderful people in this world than miserable types. Trust your goodness, you may brighten someones day. Go ahead, try it.
